The Great Leader's Birthday Celebrated.

The Corner-stone of His New York Monument Duly Laid.

Addresses by the President, Chauncey M. Depew and Others.

The Anniversary Properly Comm in Other Cities—Gov. McKinley Pays , a Noble Tribute to the Dead Hero

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, April 27.—[By the Assoated Press.] Today being the seventieth anniversary of the birth of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, the occasion was selected for laying the corner-stone of the imposing monument which is to guard the last resting place of the soldier pa-triot on the banks of the Hudson in Riverside Park. The Federal and mu-nicipal buildings were decorated, and private houses were decked with bunt-ing. The day was observed as a half holiday. Early in the day crowds set out for Riverside Park. A grand stand seating 12,000 people had been built around the foundations of the mauso leum on which there was a dais for the speakers and distinguished guests. Be low were benches for Grand Army veterans to the number of 2000. The monitor Miantonomoh dropped anchor in the Hudson opposite the tomb, and a body of soldiers sent ashore, finished the decorations around the mausolemm.

The President left the Fifth Avenue Hotel at 1:45, and was accompanied by a troop of cavalry, Capt. C. A. Roe commanding. With the President were Gen. Horace Porter and Lieut. Parksr. In other carriages were Vice-President Morton and F. D. Tappan, Secretary Elkins and Gen. Butterfield, Postmaster-General Wanamaker and John H. Harin, Secretary Noble and H. W. Cannon, Secretary Rusk, Cornelius Bliss, Chauncey M. Depew and others. The cavalry wheeled into column, and with a platoon preceding and three following the Chief Executive the party took up its march. The President left the Fifth Avenue

The ceremonies in the park were an-The ceremonies in the park were announced to commence at 2 o'clock. Long before that hour the big grand stand and other seats were filled, and the sward was swarming with crowds of spectators. Members of the Loyal Legion and G.A.R. were first to airlive. By 2 o'clock fully 40,000 people were on the ground. The arrival of the veteran Gen. Franz Sigel was the signal for an outburst of cheering by the G.A.R. comrades. Among the distinguished guests on the platform were Gens. Schodies, Howard, Dodge and Slocum. GEN. PORT ER'S ADDRESS.

President Harrison and party arrived at 2:15. After "Hail to the Chief" by the band and an invocation by Rev. Dr. John Hall, Gen. Horace Porter, president of the Grant Monu-ment Association, spoke, saying:

Porter, president of the Grant Monument Association, spoke, saying:

We gather here to lay the corner-stone of a temple of the dead, to celebrate an event which will be forever memorable in history. We meet to perform the ceremony in the presence of the people who honored him and the brave men who followed him to victory. Although the fund required for the completion of the monumental tomb is large it has been decided the lay the corner stone today in the confident belief that the patriotic work once begun will never be allowed to stop till completed. I have great satisfaction in announcing that the total subscriptions up to last night amount to $202,800. When the structure shall have reached completion the dome will point out the path of loyalty to unborn children; the hallowed memories which cluster around it will remind us of the heroic age of the Republic; the blending of chaste lines and massive proportions will be typical of the hero who sleeps beneath the granite and will recall the child-like simplicity which mingled with the majesjic grandeur of his nature.

THE STONE LAID.

THE STONE LAID. As Gen. Porter closed, workmen manned the windlass on either immense manned the windlass on either immense corner-stone, and with heads uncovered the crowd waited for the President to perform the ceremony. He stepped from the platform to the southwest corner of the foundation. He spread the cement with a gold trowal, and the stone was dropped into place. He then ascended the base and spoke as follows:

My assignment connected with these ceremonies has to do with mechanics rather than oratory. The pleasing duty of bringing to your-memory those brilliant public services, personal and manly virtues which place the name of Ulysses S. Grant so high upon the scroll of fame and settled love of man, so deeply in all patriotic hearts, has devolved upon another, who never fails to do with credit to himself, and give pleasure to his hearers when eulogizing his heroes. No orator, however gifted can over-praise Gen. Grant. [Cheers.] The most impressive and costly memorial the architect can plan, or wealth can execute is justified when the name of Grant is inscribed upon it. [Cheers.] I am glad to see here what seems to me a double assurance that the work so nobly planned will be speedily consummanted. Your distinguished citizen who has assumed the burden of conducting this great enterprise learned of his beloved chief to exclude the word failure from his vocabulary. corner-stone, and with heads uncovered There were loud cheers, during which the President resumed his seat.

DEPEW'S ORATION. Music followed, and then the orator of the day, Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, delivered an address.

In the address was the following striking passage:

A phenomenon of our times and one of the chief dangers to law and order is the growth of the school of despair. The concentrated contemplation of accumulated wealth and the hopelessness of acquiring it paralyzes industrial energies and true ambitions and plants the seeds of socialism and anarchy; but Lincoln, from his Kentucky cabin and Grant from the narrow gifts of the log hut in the Ohio wilderness, became entral figures and representatives of our age. They are types of the glory of American citizenship.

Denew declared that the predominant

Depew declared that the predominant sentiment of Grant was his family and sentiment or Grant was his family and home. He would have preferred being buried by the side of his father and mother, but appreciating the claim of his countrymen, he chose New York as his final resting place. New York, in accepting the bequest, assumed a sacred trust. Depew said:

Let the monument which will rise upon the corner-stone be worthy of the magnitude of the metropolis and grandeur of its subject. Gen. Grant needs no stately shaft nor massive pile to perpetuate his memory. The Republic is his monument and its history during what must always be considered its most critical period will be the story of his deeds.

Depend then sketched Grant's career story of his deeds.

Depew then sketched Grant's career and declared him a most self-sacrificing friend and most generous foe.

Rev. Dr. Hall pronounced the benediction and the guns of the Miantonomoh fired a national salute. Schoolboys to the number of 1500 marched by the tomb and scattered flowers around it. Mrs. Grant, with one grand-child and a party of friends, occupied a child and a parly of friends, occupied a position of honor on the grand stand. As soon as the ceremonies at the tomb were over the Presieent and party took fron. William A. Stone. After doing full justice to the splendid mena, Mr. Orlady, the toastmaster, introduced Gov. McKinley, who responded to the toast "Grant." After detailing the principal events in Gen. Grant's life, Gov. McKinley said:

The period of his Presidency constituted one of the most, if not the most-important periods of our national life. It would have been difficult, embarrassing and hazardeus to any man. Could any man have done better? I believe he was the exact man for the place, and that he filled the full measure of the trust to which his fellow-citizens called him. With no disparagement to others, two names rise above all the restin American history since Washington. They are those of Abraham Lincoln and Ulysses S. Grant. Each will be remembered for what he did and accomplished for the race and for mankind. Grant was not an old man when he died, but after all what a complete life was his. Such mighty events and mighty achievements never crowded into a single life before. Above, in his chamber of sickness and death, hung portraits of Washington ard Lincoln, whose disembodied spirits in eternal life were waiting and watching for him who was to complete the immortal trio of America's first and best love. I can imagine that these were the first to greet his sight and bid him welcome.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE. Defeated by a Small Majority in the London, April 27.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] In the House of Commons Sir Albert Kaye Rollit moved the second reading of the Woman Suffrage Bill. He declared that although much had been said derogatory to women exercising the franchise in Wyoming, he had official documents showing that it was beneficial in that State. London, April 27 .- [By Cable and State.

Samuel Smith (Liberal) moved the reection of the bill. He argued that female suffrage was introduced in Wyoming by accident. Educated Americans were opposed to giving franchise to women. The only things that would benefit by the passage of the bill were clericalism and socialism.

Balfour favored the bill. He did not agree with those who held that it would be degrading for women to take part in politics. The most surprising feature of the debate was the attitude of the Liberals whose programme includes a general extension of the franchise.

Gladstone did not speak at all, though from the tone of his recent letter it is known that he is opposed to granting the franchise to women. Rollit's motion was defeated, the Rollit's motion was defeated, the vote standing 175 to 152. The ladies' gallery of the Commons was packed, among the occupants being Mrs. Gladstone, Lady Harcourt, Lady Henry Somerset and Mrs. Fawcett. Destroyed-Exciting Scenes and Incidents During the Fire. By Telegraph to The Times. PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—[By the Associated Press.] The most sensational fire that has visited this city in years broke out tonight on the stage of the Grand Central Theater, and before it was got under control nearly $1,000. 000 worth of property was destroyed, including the massive eight-story annex including the massive eight-story annex building occupied by the Times newspaper. There was a panic in the theater, and nearly fifty persons, mostly occupants of the galleries, were hurt, none, however, seriously.

Just before 8 o'clock, while stage hands were lowering scenery from the files, a portion of the setting became entangled in the border lights. Tongues of fire shot up to the roof and the blazing scenery fell to the stage, and in a short space of time the entire rear portion of the theater was a mass of fire. A large number of female chorus singers and ballet dancers stood in the wings waiting for the performance to begin. They were thrown into a panic and rushed about, scarcely knowing which way to turn to avoid the knowing which way to turn to avoid the quickly-spreading flames. All, it is believed, were got safely out, although there is a report that three ballet girls

A scene of intense excitement was enacted before the footlights. The house was only partially filled. When the audience realized that they were face to face with a theater fire every-body started for the exits. The weaker ones were borne down and crushed under foot. One individual, maddened under foot. One individual, maddened and brutalized by excitement, drew a pocket-knife and cut his way through the mass of people. Half a dozen or more people were found at the hospital who had been victims of his frenzy. None of the wounds, however, are more than of a painful character.

Men and boys fell on the stairways leading from the galleries, bruised and scratched under the heels of those following them. Fifty-two persons were cared for at the two hospitals near the theater.

The wildest excitement prevailed on the streets. Ballet girls in gauze and tights rushed bareheaded around, al-most all of them in a hysterical condition. The fire spread with marvelous rapidity, and by the time the fire apparatus arrived the theater was a mass of flames.

The alarm was promptty given, and all the occupants of the Times-Annex Building got out in safety. The first, second, third and fourth floors were occupied by De Joskeno and Hetherington, art metal workers. The wind was blow by Hamilton & Diesinger, manufactur-ing jewelers, and portions of several buildings below on Eighth street. The front wall filled Sansom street with bricks and stone and damaged the buildings opposite. In the cellar was a new press of the Times which was ruined beyond repair. The Poulson House's roof was burned and the building soaked with water. The audience in the old Walnut Street Theater was quietly dismissed. The Continental Hotel escaped with a slight scorching. Col. A. K. McClure, editor of the Times, lost an invaluable political library. The losses, as near as can be assertained, are as follows: Central Theater building, $82,000; insurance, $40,000; costumes and scenery of the Devil's Auction, $16,000; insurance, $7500; Twelve Temptations, $18,000; insurance, $7500; Sea King, $22,000; no insurance.

Dekoseno & Hetherington's loss is at least $100,000, and Hamilton & Deisinger's $7500, partly insured. The other losses aggregate $150,000.

As the confusion following the fire somewhat subsided, the casualties were somewhat subsided, the casualties were found to be more serious than at first supposed. Forty-one persons were admitted to the Pensylvania hospital, about twenty in a serious condition. Their injuries are mainly about the face, and many, it is feared, are blinded for life by the fierce wall of fire through which they fought. The Jefferson Hospital attended to thirty of the injured. Of this number none are seriously enough burned to be kept in the institution.

AN OPEN LETTER.

By a Los Angeles Woman on a Certain Condescension in Easterners. [Dorothea Lummis in Kate Field's "Wash-ington.]"

Do you know, very dear Easterners, what we of the wild and woolen West dimly suspect? That it is you indee fixed first, that everything west of the muddy Missouri is plain savagery; secondly, that it does not matter much how one behaves when far from home and home standards of criticism; and lastly, that we barbarians cannot have any sensi-bilities that you are at all bound to respect.

Cannot these be the only reasons why when you have come, you are apt to express a native surprise that we, even we, read Browning and cultivate a fad or two; that even we can tell the difference between a real oil painting and an Art Interchange chromo; ence between a real oil painting and an Art Interchange chromo; that even we have art loan associations, public libraries, choral societies and a mild smatter of æsthetics? Is it not the reason also that when you emerge from the doors of your hotel into the streets crowded with the 'pulsing life of a city that is or is to be you are apt to gather in haughty and exclusive groups midway of the pavement, there to chatter and to deprecate, while you innocently obstruct traffic and, in our course and vulgar phraseology, "get yourselves disliked?"

Is it not again the reason why, when you kindly but tunultuously visit the few treasures we have left us, you often leave them somewhat the worse for your distinguished patronage?

If these questions are of the order commonly calleo glittering generalities it is not a far cry to a very modern instance. Not so long ago but that their memory in still green a selected party of Eastern travelers had their luxuriously appointed "special" stopped at Capistrano for fifteen minutes in order to enable them to visit the mission of for fifteen minutes in order to en-able them to visit the mission of San Juan. Thirty minutes for din-mer, fifteen for San Juan Capistrano! It might make the angels laugh—if it didn't make them cry. A wisit' say rather an invasion. The young padre was gone on his long itinerary of the par-ishes, and there was no one there but an old peon sweeping the pastal, who fled at the approach of the crowd. Nothing was there to protect the old mission or control the conduct of the sight-seers but their own sense of sight-seers but their own sense of decency, and the reverence the peaceful and beautiful church might fitly inspire in the dullest and coldest heart. Finding the doors all locked—they never were till vandals made it necessary—they untied the old gate and poured into the plaza, tenanted only by a mild and speckled cow, not of the encreaching species. croaching species.

By tens and twenties they hurried down the grassy corridors and under the crumbling arches, where yet the ghosts of passion, sacrifice and, pain linger, the young men and women joking, laughing and playfully scuffling, while not even from the elders was to be heard one appreciative word, or seen one loving or sections glance. It was one loving or serious glance. It was but fitting to the whole, when a rather magisterial member retired to a far coign of vantage and levelled at the awe-inspiring ruin a No. 1 Kodak! Then some one found a door that could Then some one found a door that could be forced, and rushing through the little chapel, unbarring the door into the graveyard, they hurried on, tramping on the graves of saint and sinner like, round the flying buttresses of the bell-tower and down the road to the shrinking engine. One or two delayers shricking engine. One or two delayed long enough to throw stones at the swinging bells of the tower, and one swinging bells of the tower, and one taller or more flippant than the rest succeeded in reaching the rope and sent a ribald peal from bells that heretofore had rung only for prayer or for the dying. A practical comment upon their visit can be seen today in a barbed-wire fence stretching its barrier across the approaches to the mission. These, pray bear in mind, were no ordinary tourists, but folk of the class reputed refined, decent and cultivated.

Thanks to those wonderful men, the padres, the dear old mission can endure a many and a many such incursions unharmed. The pity and the shame of it a many and a many such incursions in harmed. The pity and the shame of it lies rather that among those who rush to see it, is so seldom ever one who knows or cares for its heroic history or feels its charm as she who wrote: "The peace, silence and beauty of the little hamlet of San Juan are brooded over and dominated by the grand gray ruin, lifting the whole scene into ineffa-ble harmony. Wandering in room after room, court after court, through corri-dors with red tiled roofs and hundreds of broad Roman arches, over fallen pillars and through carved doorways whose untrodden thresholds have sun out of sight in summer grasses, one asks himself if he be indeed in America.

Should you reply that this instance is dagrant, the retort courteous would be that it is common. Should you say that it cannot matter to you after all, one would beg you not to forget that to you still, as in the past, this great young West looks for its standards of high thought and pure life. Is it, then, not worth your while to treat us to your best in all things, to be for us still the power that indeed "makes for righteousness?" A WESTERNER

Gossip About the North Pacific Coast Road.

The Connection the Southern Pacific May Have in It.

The Santa Fe and the Los Angeles and Pacific—Enginemen on a Long Junket—Local and General Notes.

The San Francisco Chronicle of Tues

The San Francisco Chronicle of Tuesday says:

Railroad men were considerably stirred up over the publication of the news of the foreclosure of the North Pacific Coast Railroad Company. Strenuous efforts were made to support the story that the road had been purchased by William Graves. A little inquiry, however, showed that though the reputed buyer is not by any means short of coin, still he does not carry in his pocket or control directly the means of purchasing even a comparatively small railroad property such as the Coast road. That the Metropoliton Trust Company of New York foreclosed its mortgage there can be no doubt, and the facts of its control of entry to Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco are undeniable. Collis P. Huntington has been represented as having a large interest in the trust company. This, however, is incorrect, as his interest is very small. The object, however, of representing it as next door to a controlling interest was easily learned yesterday. The association of San Francisco merchants who are interested in the building of the competing line from this city to Sait Lake will not be wholly dependent upon their own resources, and when the time comes the Metropolitan Frust Company will be there. to afford all the necessary backing. If however, the report can be spread abroad that the trust company is controlled by C. P. Huntington and that his finger is to be traced in the foreclosure of the mortgage on the Sansalito road a different aspect would be cast over the entire transaction and the false impression gained that the Southern Pacific Company controlled the Coast road entry into San Francisco. Further than to say that he is above "faking," it is unnecessary to write of Shannon's merits, as they are too well known here for comment, his career as boxing instructor at the Los Angeles Athletic Club, during which he made himself justly popular with all who came in contact with him, having stamped him as an unusually clever man, he will undoubtedly make a hurricane fight of it, and onless his opponent proves to be a much better, man than is reported of him, he should dispose of Graham in ten rounds. If, however, the latter stands up to the rack and returns with interest whatever he receives, the fight will by no means be the foregone conclusion which Shannon's friends seem to think it is.

THE LATE CONVENTION.

Its Work Not Meeting With Public Approval.

The Secret Ballot Not Likely to Beco Popular in Los Angeles—Gen. John-son Unluckily Coming in for Much Criticism

The result of Monday's convention still a leading topic of discussion in political circles and among citizens generally, and if the drift of public talk is any criterion of public opinion the outcome is anything but satisfactory. The unprecedented action of the convention in resorting to the secret ballot-always the weapon of the polit ical trickster—for the purpose of "taking the sense of the convention" is very generally condemned by every lover of fair play and honorable meth-

very generally condemned by every lover of fair play and honorable methods, and people are not at all backward about expressing their opinions on the matter. Gen. Johnson's course comes in for much sharp criticism, and that geatleman will have considerable trouble in explaining the very equivocal position in which he has allowed himself to be placed; many of the Republicans who have heretofore been friendly to him characterizing his action as little short of open treachery and double dealing. A prominent politician and lawyer yesterday summed up the situation in the following pithy statement:

"It was thoroughly understood when teen. Johnson signed a request that Col. Otis should be selected as the delegate to Minneapolis, that he meant it and pledged his support. On the 13th of April Col. Otis consented to take the position if tendered-wrote his letter on the 14th to Gen. Johnson and 125 others. On the 13th Gen. Johnson announced through the Express that he was not and would not be a candidate. In legal language he estopped himself from accepting the position; and if the case was before a court the decision would be given against him. Possibly some Callifornians may have peculiar and extraordinary ideas of right and propriety. Why should California Republicans resort to practices which are not countenanced or permitted elsewhere? The result remains to be seen in the State convention. The probabilities are that, if Col. Otis had not distinctly understood that Gen. Johnson had positively withdrawn and was giving him cordial and direct support on the 13th of April, he would not have written the letter of the 14th. Col. Otis has shown that he would not engage in solicitation nor in any scramble for omec, and that only if tendered to him without an unseemly struggle in the arena of local politics, he would conceive it to be his duty to case and the arena of local politics, he would conceive the position. How far it may be considered honest and honorable for mea actuated by personal considered. in the arena of local politics, he would conceive it to be his duty to considered honest and honorable for men actuated by personal considerations and prejudices to go into a county convention and secure a majority to express a preference for a man who had piedged his support to Col. Otis (thus, as they might deem it, placing a discourtesy and rudeness upon Otis) will be subject for much discussion. The chance was eagerly seized; but to the minds of honorable men the success of the leaders in that point, and their failure to secure the slightest instruction, will carry a conviction that such action should be signally rebuked. And the delegates from the other counties of the district—Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis, Monterey and Santa Cruz—should make it unanimus by declaring their disapprobation of the men who are constantly striving to rule Republican action in this city for their own benefit, without regard to the interests of the party.

"It would not add one lota to the merit and worth of Col. Otis to select him as delegate.

Otis to select him as del The action, whatever it may be; will ot in the slightest change his fearless in dependence and advocacy of truth and right, by means of which his character is measured at home and abroad. But as a means of telling the little tools of their big-ger masters that the Republicans of Cali-fornia will be led by neither, the district should speak out openly and clearly."

MR. WELLS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

An Honest Los Angeles Man Mistaken for a Legislative Candidate. A little man with a brown beard stood a circle of men of all sizes and ages at the Palace Hotel a night or two ago. Among the number was World's Fair Commissioner Thompson of Tulare,

Alex Crow of the State Board of Horticulture and three or four others, says the San Francisco Examiner of Tues-It was plain that it was an interes

ing conversation, for every man's head was slightly bowed and he kept his place in the ring as though it was a mat-ter of unusual importance. One singu-lar thing was that the little man kept both hands behind his back and made singular pantomimic movements, as though acquisitiveness was more than usually developed. "Would make a good candidate for the Legislature," said one of the num-

"He's trying to keep in practice," said another. The gentleman was found to be a Mr. Wells of Los Angeles, and when somebody said he was in the real estate business everybody laughed.

THE KIRMESS.

The Opening Night a Great Success.

The Operahouse Crowded With a Fashionable Audience.

One of the Most Gorgeous Spectacles Ever Presented in the City.

Scene at the Redondo Wharf Arrival of the "Emigrants"-The Dances of All Nations-Some of the Special Features.

The Grand Operahouse was packed to the doors last night with the flower of the city's wealth and fashion, to wit ness the great society sensation called the Kirmess. The audience was brilliant and full dress was quite the rule, although the edict as to head-gear was not entirely lived up to. It is too soon after Easter to expect the ladies to hide those beautiful bonnets on a gala occacasion such as was last night.

As is to be expected on first nights, the waits were very long, and so tiresome as to make the gallery somewhat boisterous, but no doubt by tonight everything will move with neatness and dispatch.

The first scene was the word "Kirmess," spelled ont with human letters drawn from the Athletic Club gymnasium, and was a very striking feature.
The second scene represented the wharf at Redondo with groups of participants in the following dances of the festival, viz: "The Flowers," "Flowers and Bees," "La Belle," "Dew Drops and Leaves," the "Military and American the state of the state o and Leaves," the "Military and American" characters, together with "Uncle Sam" and dame "Columbia" all marching on to the scene with the national colors, to the music of national airs. A steamer's whistle was heard, and the good ship "Helvetia" steamed into the pier loaded down with the reppier loaded down with the rep-resentatives of all nations who reach these hospitable shores via the prospec-tive canal through Nicaragua. The tive canal through Nicaragua. The foreign hordes disembark in groups and advance under the flags of their respective countries and to the music of their national airs. Uncle Sam introduces them to Dame Columbla, and, when all are lauded, a Kite-shaped train rushes in on a Kite-shaped Track bound for Los Angeles. The train was, a trifle wobbly, the tender to the engine getting loose and running off against a scene and the coaches acting like they needed a bi-chloride injection, but the iron horse and his attachments finally came horse and his attachments finally came to a pause and a "sure-enough" con-ductor says "all aboard," which brings the gaudily-clad emigrants to the streets of Los Angeles, through which the gay procession passes with band playing and colors flying. Scene four is a grand tableau showing Scene four is a grand tableau showing the participants, numbering over 200, massed on a pyramid, with Uncle Sam, Dame Columbia and Ola Glory at its apex. It was a striking and brilliant spectacle, calling forth great applause, but as the programme specifically stated that no encores would be responded to, the curtain persistently staid down.

The first dance was the "Hibernian," neatly and gracefully performed by neatly and gracefully performed by Misa Nellie St. Clair and Joe Bumiller. Both showed terpsichorean talent, the young lady being especially deft in her steps and posturings.

Then came "Dewdrops and Leaves," sixteen little tots in a tableau followed by a dainty dance that was the most noisily received of any-thing of the evening. The dancers in this were Misses Nellie Lockwood, Marie Churchill, Eya Perry, Agnes Lit-tleboy, Silvia Dawes, Clara Melner, Anna Dunn, Nona Taylor, Ida Hasson, lda Smith, and Masters Walter Maxwell, Frankie Amlar, George Le Doux, Erving Hellman, Edwin Ducommun and Robbie Moore, Jessie Wilde, Norman Robinson, Carrie Wilson and Arthur Braly, Will Allen, D. H. Burkes, Award Rivers, William C. Alken and Howard Rivers, William C. Aiken and Harry Heffner. The tableau preceding the flower dance which followed was full of color and beauty, each of the ers and swinging it in rythmic time to the seductive music of the waltz. It was one of the most beautiful pieces of the evening as the stage was so filled with pretty girls and dancing flowers as to be a moving mass of lovliness. At the end of the waltz movement six fairy-like cupids came upon the scene and poising themselves upon one knee remained in that attitude until Miss Anna Smith, the soloist of the dance, went through the graceful steps of her part, "The Fairy of Ferns." The "Hollandaise" dancers came next in their picturesque costumes and equally picturesque dance of the low-lands behind the dykes. The dancers were: Misses Grace Davidson, Wini-fred Davidson, Blanche Alvins, Clara Smith, Anna Jones, Nellie Sherman, and Messrs. Arthur Smith, Walter Mc-Intosh, William Manning, Russell Taylor, Harry Roth and Robert Parsons.

The sixth number was a solo, "La Belle," danced by Miss Mamie Guiteau in a most graceful and fetching manner. It was one of the features of the evening.

The "Military" followed, the young ladies being resplendent in semi-military dress in which gold cord and the cavalry colors were predominant, and the young gentlemen in full mili-tary dress even to the helmets. The tary dress even to the helmets. The dance was full of army salutes and was performed in a very stately and striking fashion by Misses Clara Battelle, Nina Jevne, Lizzie Wildman, M. C. Walters, Charlotte Bugbee, Florence Reed, and Messrs. H. W. Watson, Henry J. Kramer, Gregory Perkins, Welcome, C. N. Randolph and J. Fred Blake.

The Bohemian Gypsies followed in very striking costumes worn by ten charming young ladies. Their dance was finely done to the accompaniment of tambourines, the performers as follows: Misses Julia Off, Gertrude Edgerton, Mildred Glass, Floy Tyler, Letha Lewis, Laura Chauvin, Mabel Luitweiler, Virginia Orr, L. D. Rison and Mrs. W. N. Patrick.

The next dance was of a Spanish nature and was a double number. The first "La Jota" was beautifully given by Miss Clara Germain and Henry J. Kramer to song of the same name, by Misses Bertha and Helen Roth, accompanied by Prof. Arevalo and his guitar club. viz: Misses Mabel McFarland, Lizzie Thayer, Mrs. L. L. Taggart and Mr. M. C. Carrizosa. The evening came to a close with a Chinese dance, the only comic feature of the programme. It represented the reigning monarch on his throne watching his salaried dancers doing the high reigning monarch on his throne watching his salaried dancers doing the high and lofty terpsichorean act as only our Mongolian brethren can do anything from driving a horse to getting off a street car in motion. The Kirmess was a great success on the occasion of its opening, and as there is a new bill this evening no doubt another large audience will be in attendance. The object is a worthy one, and the work of getting such a large number of participants into presentable form is such that those having the matter in hand certainly deserve the fullest measure of success. ing his salaried dancers doing the high and lofty terpsichorean act as

NUGGETS ON THE ALTAR.

One of the Stories Told of the Long-lost Mines of Arizona. [Arizona Enterprise.] The legends of lost mines of fabulous wealth in Pima county are almost numberless, and, it might be truthfully added, generally mythical. The old-timers can tell of them by the hour, and a few have been shown glittering evidences in confirmation of the wonderful tales reluctantly recited with superstitions dread of the consequences of their tious dread of the consequences of their perfidd by almost superanuated Indians and Mexicans.

That the precious metals were mined on a gigantic scale in the dim past the many remaining evidences already discovered fully verify, yet the investigation of those that chance has revealed has seldom proved financially successful. Old arrastras, covered with the decay of centuries, and crude smelting furnaces that have almost returned to the dusty destiny of all matter, speak of industries once in active operation that history and even aboriginal tradition fails to mention. Some of the traditions told sound like fairy tales, and one, however skeptical, cannot but become deeply interested in their recital. As a sample of the highly-plausible, well-authenticated and extremely seductive narratives, one re-lated by Charles O. Brown of this city may be received with interest. "Speaking of old mines," said Mr.

"Speaking of old mines," said Mr. Brown, "I have spent a great deal of time and money in hunting up old clews, and one of them was actually found, and I can go to it at any time. Out in the Silver Bell country I can take you to a mountain so full of tunnels and shafts that, if they were in good and safe condition you could travel through all day long and not reach the end. A number of old-timers have visited it, and, judging from the vast work done there so long ago, they concluded that a great mine of some kind had existed there, which had likely been worked out. Many times has it been worked out. Many times has it been located, and though its walls, roof and floor were carefully scanned and sampled, the result, while showing some gold, was discouraging, assays showing from a trace up to several dollars per

"Many years ago I talked with an old Papago Indian, with whom I was on very friendly terms, having often ex-tended him little favors, about the gold tended him little favors, about the gold and silver mines. In a burst of confidence he told me that a great many years ago, when he was a very small boy, the Indians at San Xavier del Bac made weekly trips to a very rich gold mine. On Saturday night they returned with the product of their toil. The priest in charge of the mission kept a small table in front of the aitar covered with a white cloth with a white cloth, upon which the pious toilers placed their metallic offerings to the chnrch. This table was often covered with golden nuggets, varying in size from a pea to one's flst, and it was a rich sight. After the usual service the priest would descend, and as he picked up each precious piece he would preclaim the name of the denor upon which the as he picked up each precious piece he would proclaim the name of the donor and afterward call them forward to receive the special blessing of heaven. On the following Monday they would again take up their march in a northwesterly direction for the mines, and for a very long time this was repeated, notif the priests were driven out of the until the priests were driven out of the country, when they abandoned mining entirely. "The old Indian had at one time gone with the miners, who followed a well-beaten trail toward the Silver Bell country, and he saw them take out the gold. He agreed to show me the place, gold. He agreed to show me the place, and out of curiosity I sent a man with him one day. They went out to the old mine I have spoken of in the Silver Bell country, and when they reached a certain gulch the Indian pointed to the top of the mountain and said he would find a shaft there, covered with catclaw bushes, out of which the most gold was taken. The man found everything just as the old Indian told him, but long disuse had filled up the shaft until it was nearly full.

it was nearly full. "On returning the old Indian could not be found. He had gone ahead and was not met for several days. He then said he did not dare to show the mine to the white people and protested that he did hot show it for fear the Great Spirit would take his life. He said the white man had found it, but he did not

"I visited the mine afterward, but the work necessary to clean out the shaft was too great and too expensive to un-dertake, and it has never been touched.

"The formation is a singular one, and "The formation is a singular one, and samples of the white rock sent to California were pronounced an exceedingly fine quality of kaolin, such as fine porcelain ware is made of. Through it were streaks of iron rust, and it is likely the gold was found in them. Whether it will ever pay for the necessarily expensive exploration and prospecting is quite doubtful, but there is gold to be found there."

the Eastern States that rich men are acquiring proprietary rights in the streams and lakes and monopolizing them as fishing preserves. This is a very bad English custom which we are sorry to see copied in America, and we hope it will never make headway in

THE efficacy of missionary labors in East Africa is somewhat open to question when information is brought of a desperate war between the Protestant and Catholic natives. It is true that civilized and Christianized nations elsewhere do the same thing, but something better is expected from the savage when he is brought fo the throne of grace.

BRAZIL is a sorely-afflicted country. Burdened with a load of debt, which it seems out of the question for her to pay; floundering along through the quagmire of public and private bankruptcy, a revolution on hand, and now beset by the scourge of yellow fever and disastrous floods! The old savings that "misfortunes never come singly," and that "it never rains but it pours" are as true of nations as of individuals.

THE property of the sugar trust is capitalized at $50,000,000, though a fair estimate puts its real value at about $20,000,000. The margin of $30,000,000 is not sugar, but water. This trust has now absolute control of all the sugar-refining business in the United States. It can bull and bear the market to suit its own sweet will and way and the American people must smack their lips and be satisfied.

THE Rural New Yorker rises to ask why Uncle Sam cannot carry our packages as well as our letters and papers at first cost. Canada enjoys'a department of the service which is called a parcel post. All sorts of packages, within reasonable limits, are carried by this service at a cost of 4 cents per pound. There is no reason why this business in the United States should be left to private express companies to charge exorbitant rates and accumulate fortunes therefrom. Let's have the parcel

A WESTERN exchange thinks that the most probable outcome of the Wyoming war will be to turn public attention to the well-watered and fertile valleys of Northern Wyoming and impel a current of immigration to that section composed of home-seekers who will enhance the value of the lands, improve their own condition and develop a State of vast resources which has thus far been paralyzed by combinations of capitalists, who have contributed little to the section from which they have drawn their easily-gotten wealth.

WITH but one exception there, is at present more wheat in store in Duluth elevators than ever before at any one market in history. The total is 15,-265,000 bushels, practically all of which is of the best milling grades. There are also 200,000 barrels of flour awaiting shipment for the East. To move all this it will take about 400 commence within a few days. In April, 1885, Chicago elevators contained 15,871,000 bushels of wheat, which is so far the high water mark.

JUDGE GRESHAM, it seems, is really not in the field as a candidate for the Presidential nomination. Private letters from him, dated as late as the 12th and 23d insts., have been received in Los Angeles, in which he asserts that he will "never figure again, before the public, in connection with a political office." And yet a very large number of American citizens, demanding a high standard of integrity, patriotism and ability in any man who may aspire to be President of the United States, have looked with hope and eagerness toward Judge

Dr. WILLIAM F. The Advisory Council contains the names of the most distinguished electricians of Europe and this country. Dr. Channing is the inventor of the electric fire-alarm system, and he also deserves credit for many of the most important principles utilized in the Bell telephone. He is a veteran in the ranks of the electrical scientists of the United States.

THE Canadian poachers, when they find that the British government is not going to back them up in their deviltry propose to make sales (probably fictitious) to citizens of other nations, like Germany and Italy, and then let their craft go to sea under the flags of those nations. Such a thin subterfuge as this will be very uncertain to rely upon. Other peoples of Europe have their hands just as full at home and are just as reluctant about getting into complications with the United States as is Great Britain. They will hardly allow a lot of Canadian irresponsibles, repudiated by their own government, to force a fishing controversy upon them in this way. A little diplomatic corre-spondence would probably elicit from the European powers a disclaimer of any intention to meddle with our controversy and orders to their subjects to refrain from poaching in Bering Sea

The Secret Ballot in Conventions. While the subject of the secret ballot in nominating conventions is somewhat fresh in the public mind, it is not amiss to call attention to its effects. In the outset it is necessary to consider the duties of a delegate to a nominating convention. The duty imposed upon him is to aid in selecting the very best men of his party as candidates for the offices which are to be filled. If the delegate does this with intelligence and honesty he has discharged his duty to his constituents and to his party. He is responsible first to the general public, next to the members of his party. If the delegate is honest and intelligent he will make very few mistakes in casting his votes. If he is dishonest he can only be held answerable to his party, which he may wrong by voting to nominate bad men, though bad men may be nominated by their own kind, and, where there is a large party majority for local offices, be elected. This is especially the case in a Presidential year. When bad men have been nominated by bad men who are delegates to conventions, or by good men who are deceived by the plausible professions of scoundrels who are candidates, the public can hold the party manager responsible by voting against them, where they refuse to place responsibility upon the gulity delegates. Therefore no delegate has the right to hide his act, shirk his responsibility by sneaking behind a secret ballot. By the secret ballot the worst men have been nominated, and, as before stated, elected by the large party majority acting under the lash and excitement of a Presidential campaign.

The secret ballot is the invention of the party "boss." He uses his roughs, rock-rollers and repeaters to sarry primaries, fills the convention with his cattle as delegates, and if he thus secures a bare majority he has only to have a secret ballot and nominate the candidates who have paid him to do their work, and the minority of honest men become responsible for the prostitution by a boss of the party which may be in the majority.

No honest man seeking the public good is afraid to name, in public, the man or men whom he desires to have elected to office. Nor does any honest man desert a party when he has been defeated by honest, open votes of his fellow-citizens, because in all contests of this kind there must be defeats. But when a man is nominated by this cowardly subterfuge of political bosses, in a convention where his cattle stand still and wait to deposit the cut-anddried tickets which have been placed in their hands, that man is entitled to and deserves defeat at the hands of the roters of the party which is responsible for the convention. No delegate with an honest purpose to serve his country and his party will be afraid to cast his open vote for the man of his choice, and, if that man should be nominated, to be held answerable for the character and conduct of the nominee. But the boss whose trade is political manipulation, and whose living is made by selling nominations, can resort to the secret ballot and thus give a veneer of respectability to a rascally candidate by showing that he was voted for by the decent minority.

The people of this community do not want political bosses nor their methods and yet they can only destroy them by voting to defeat their candidates, wh may be nominated by such disreputable and cowardly practices.

The secret ballot must sooner or late be abolished, even if it has to be accomplished by defeating candidates who are nominated by it.

Red-hot Mahatmas.

At a session of the American section of the Theosophical Society in Chicago the other day there was an interesting discussion on "Is it Reasonable to Be-lieve in Mahatmas?" Dr. Archibald Keightley said the existence of Mahatmas was a logical conclusion of the law of evolution. A lady delegate asked why the Mahatma sages were always located beyond the Himalayas.

Mr. Judge responded: "We couldn't have them in America because the newspaper men would scout them out and choke out of them the secrets they possess. Furthermore, the Mahatmas bodies are not like ours. Should one of these adepts visit us here, our bodies, in the presence of their superior powers would take fire and become inciner

Chairman Thomas remarked that there is a splendid place in the Mojave Desert, 5000 feet above the sea, where the Mahatmas might live apart, and added that Californians are canvassing the idea of inducing some of them to lo cate there.

We are not advised accurately of the physical characteristics of the Ma-hatma. He is not defined either in Webster or in the encyclopædia, but from the context we imagine he is something on the salamander order. It would be interesting to study the genus if we could catch a specimen and stake it out on the fervent alkali wastes of the Mojave. We infer that besides th capacity for enduring great heat the Mahatma is also endowed with the faculty of radiating it. Otherwise we could not understand the glowing re mark of Mr. Judge, that "should one of one of these adepts visit us here, our bodies, in the presence of their superior powers, would take fire and become incinerated."

And yet, let it be noted, if we had hese glowing sages in this country the chief danger would not be from the in ineration of the bodies of common Theosophists and other mortals, but from the fact that "newspaper men would scout them out and choke out of them the secrets they possess."

Think of the average newspaper re porter on a salary of $50 a week scout ing out one of these flery-furnace Ma hatmas and actually choking out of him the red-hot secrets of his diabolical order! Many compliments have hither to been paid to the hard-worked news paper man, but we opine that none has before equaled this for sincerity and delicacy. It is a common saying that the trained reporter will go through fire and flood in the discharge of his duty, but it has never before been intimated that he would defy absolute incineration by tackling a superheated Mahatma. We cannot repress a glow of pride over the fire-brick fortitude which is now attributed to this humble but worthy representative of the press He is at last promoted to the flery furance coal bed of distinction which has so long been monopolized by Shad-

rac. Mesheck and Abednego. Of course it would be a great honor and a great advertisement for Southern California to have a lodge, or parlor, or conflagration of Mahatmas established on the Mojave Desert, We would be glad to welcome them, and would even engage to keep intrusive newspaper reporters away (under penalty of being "fired") provided the aforesaid Mahatmas would have no effect on the climate generally. would like to engage that the climate should not be interfered with. We think a great deal of this climate of ours, and if there is any danger of that being incinerated, as well as the Theosophists and other people, we must forego the distinction of the Mahatma

If the Mojave or the Colorado Desert or even Death Valley, could be inclosed with a suitable fire wall, it might prove both convenient and efficacious to have such a settlement within easy reach. Hell is a long way off, and, in view of certain heretical opinions, quite uncer tain. What a handy thing it would be, therefore, if we could commend som people to Mahatmas, and see that they get there. And what a dandy place it would be for a third party convention! The delegation of salamander news paper men would have everything their wn way. They could invite the object tionable parties out for a fishing or hunting excursion and toll them through the furnace door and leave them there The clinkers of sin that can burn no more

As previously stated, we are in favo of the Mahatma colony, and we suggest the Chamber of Commerce instruct its Committee on Reduction Works to circulate a subscription paper to build the fire-wall required. There are a lot of people that ought to call on the Mahatmas, and it shall not be our fault if they do not have free tickets of admission and an escort.

A. D. Deming, an oil and gas expert from Oil City. Pa., and the owner of some valuable wells at that place, has just completed a tour of Southern California, primarily for his health, and secondarily to examine into our oil interests and gas prospects. On the invitation of Mr. Hellman he visited the gas well on that gentleman's property near Boyle Heights. The present flo of gas, secured at a depth of about 200 feet, comes from a gravel formation. Mr. Deming thinks that a steady sup ply cannot be counted on now, but the ndications are so good that he advises sinking the well to a much greater depth. In Pennsylvania serviceable gas wells are not secured short of a depth of 1900 to 2000 feet, and the supply is always found confined below an impervious stratum of rock. The same conditions, he thinks, will hold good in California, and he advises a thorough prospect. Mr. Deming is so well pleased with our country generally that if he can dispose of his interests in Pennsylvania he proposes to become Southern Californian.

We are in receipt of a copy of the English publication, Piccadilly, containing a full-page lithograph portrait of Mrs. Victoria Woodhull-Martin and a fulsome sketch of three columns devoted to her. Evidently Mrs. Martin is working the literary features of her Presidential campaign from the other side of the water. Either the English press is more gullible than we can possibly believe, or it is securing good money for this service. If Mrs. Wood hull is blowing her rich English husband in for it, we suggest to her as a patriotic American citizen (and Presidential can didate) that this wealth would better be distributed among the needy voters of the United States, where it will do the most good. Lydia Pinkham has held the boards as the type of matronly beauty a long time, and if Mrs. Woodhull-Martin wishes to supplant her in the American mind, Mrs. W.-M. must advertise in the patent-outside weeklies

STILL another flagrant example of false, dishonest and "cooked" reporting was found in the evening organ's convention report on Monday last. At that trying juncture in the proceedings when Capt. Blennerhassett, exposing the organ's cant about "combines" which existed only in the camp of the original "combiners," was pouring hot shot into the quarter where H. Z. Osborne was taking cover behind the flanks of the Federal brigade, there was beautiful chance for the sheet that makes the boast, "First, the news," to graphically record the large and loud man-collector's seat. But was the event plur truly recorded in the Evening Express Not by a d. s.! On-the contrary, not a word was said about it in the organ's "cooked" report, except to falsely represent that Blennerhassett's speech to another question. The real force and meaning of the speech was either perverted or suppressed to suit the exigencies of the situation, which were 'binding" upon the editor himself. Mr. Osborne, who is not essaying his first venture in personal politics, should learn that dishonest reporting is dishonest journalism, and that the public won't have it.

HERE is a point for the howlers of the Federal brigade in California who are demanding that instructions be given all our State delegates to vote for the renomination of the President, whether or no. Suppose that Mr. Senator Stanford appears in the arena of fight at Minneapolis demanding the indorsement of California for himself! What sort of a plight will it leave these hasty howlers in? They mainly owe their places to the Senator-he created them officially-and how can they refuse him the coveted indorsement? Let the papsucking patriots pause and ponder Let them strike a reflective attitude, like a hen on one leg in a rainstorm, and think about it hard. We venture now, in advance of the voting, to assert that when these p. s. patriots discover that Mr. Stanford wants their services and demands their votes in convention they will to a man abandon Mr. Harrison to his fate. They are an agile lot of politicians, who are well up in the SUPT. BYRNES of New York is a wise man. He knows how to bow gracefully to public disapproval and put himself the right side. The overhauling which he has just given the New York police cannot but do some good, even if it is only temporary. There is no evidence to show that the wholesale transfer of officers was the result of the cru. sade undertaken by Rev. Dr. Parkhurst. Mr. Byrnes is not a man who is very communicative on the "whys and wherefores" of his acts. But it touches a point which Dr. Parkhurst emphasized as one of the evils of the present system. The reduction of the ward detectives to patrolmen does away with the present collection agents of the Democratic machine. Ways will undoubtedly be found to get this hush money, but the fear caused by the overturn and the necessity of instituting a new system will do something.

SINCE the defeat of the lottery faction in Louisiana it is satisfactory to know that there is not a State in the Union which persists in maintaining a great gambling concern in defiance of the enlightened opinion of the rest of the country. It is also a subject of congratulation that the Nation is now relieved of the disgrace of authorized and open lottery gambling. Other kindred evils still exist, but none of them pursued the work of collecting the money of the deluded in so systematic and unblushing a fashion old is to be hoped that the same progress that has wiped out the lottery will work toward the reform of other forms of gambling wherever they exist.

THE Express protests that the delegates should obey the vote cast for Mesers. Spence and Johnson, and cast their vote accordingly. "A sense of honor" should compel them to follow the will of the convention. The will of the convention was that the delegates should go uninstructed and untrammeled, and it was so voted on three times and almost unanimously carried. "A sense of honor" would not admit, in the face of these facts, of a delegate construing the vote of the convention day and will fight to the bitter end any further official recognition of it. It is safe to say that no phase of religious belief can be mentioned in which there would not be contention by religious sects. There is no single point of general agreement.

THE peanut crop of Virginia is worth to that State $8,000,000 annually. Norfolk is the great peanut center Smyrna has its figs. Barbary its dates Bordeaux its grapes and Southern Cali fornia its figs, grapes and oranges, but Norfolk has its peanuts. And what would life be without peanuts?

POLITICAL POINTS

There is a difference between the boom that is a going and the boom that is a com-ing. Note this from the St. Joe Herald (Rep. ) "Senator Vest is now of the opin-ion that the nomination of fat Grover Cleveland is inevitable. Only a little while ago he was equally confident that his fat friend's nomination was certain defeat."

friend's nomination was certain defeat."

"Andrew Jackson Houston, the Republican candidate for governor of Texas, is a son of Gen. Sam Houston. The son of Shephen A, Douglas is a prominent Republican leader in Illinois. That these men should have found it necessary to leave the party of their fathers will surprise no student of history who has noted how far the modern Democrocy has drifted from the broad and patriotic preachings of Jefferson and Jackson."

It is a frigid and sobering redection that and Jackson."

It is a frigid and sobering reflection that up to date Hill has developed more strength in Massachusetts than in any other State, except New York, north of Mason and Dixon's line and east of the Mississlppi River. If, four years ago, with a united party behind him, Cleveland was beaten by $2.000. Diurality in this commonwealth, it is easy.

It is now said that Tom Reed has set his heart on going as a delegate to the national convention from the Pine Tree State, and ti is also said that Mr. Blaine and Senators Hale and Frye have determined to oppose any further political honors being conferred on the ex-Speaker. A few days ago Mr. Reed left Washington to look after his fences. Those who know him best say that Mr. Reed left Washington to look after his fences. Those who know him best say that he will put up the fight so that there will be no doubt about his election. He not only wants to be a delegate, but he wants to be presiding officer of the convention. As he and Mr. Harrison are not on particularly friendly terms he may encounter opposition strong enough to keep him out of that coveted position.

Some good California Democrats (including the editor of the Heraid,) if they try real hard, may secure a valuable tip by perusing what the New York Evening Post (Mug.) says in this paragraph: "The 'practical politicians' of the Democratic party are falling over one another in their haste to get in the front line of the swelling Cleveland procession. After spending months of useless labor in a united effort to prevent their party from nominating the man of its choice, they discover suddenly, as one State convention after another ascembles and declares with enthusiastic unanimity for Cleveland, that he is really the only candidate who ought to be nominated, and they accordingly predict his nomination by acclamation." ing the editor of the Herald,) if they try

The Republican party has put forth among others, three great points which it has worked to the welfare and progress of has worked to the welfare and progress of the country. It fought a great war for the obliteration of the stain of slavery and for the continuation of the existence of our form of government. But it has done as great things for the Nation and humanity in advocating free homesteads for the homeless, protection to American industries and cheap postage. The last act of the last Democratic President before the war was to veto a free homestead law. One of the first acts of the first Republican President was to sign the one and commend it. The result of that action was to build up the vast empire of the West, and that now comes into potential influence in the affairs of the country and sends away one great vessel after another laden with its products to feed the famishing peasantry of our friend Russia, while the givers revel in plenty and prepare for visits to the sumin plenty and prepare for visits to the sum mer resorts or pleasure trips to Europe.

Alarmed at the low rate of births in France the authorities of that country are attempting to devise ways and means by which the few infants that are born can be saved. To this end heavy penalties have been prescribed for any one who shall be convicted of feeding any solid food to a child under feeding any solid food to a child under I year of age, unless the same is prescribed by a legally qualified medical man. The meeting then took a recess pending the depositing of ballots for directors. The result of the balloting, which was not announced until evening, was the election of the following directors: Frederick L. Ames, Edwin F. Arkins, Samuel Carr, Henry H. Cook, F. Gordon Dexter, Sidney Dillon, Greenville M. Dodge, Marvin Hughitt, Henry B. Hyde, Joseph H. Millard, Alexander E. Orr, James Sharp, Gardiner M. Lane, Jay Gould, Russell Sage. The meeting then adjourned. S. H. H. Clark of Omaha, general manager of the Union Pacific, was on the directors' ticket, but was defeated by Gardiner M. Lane from the opposition ticket.

The two other directors beside Lane on the opposition were Charles C. Jackson of Boston, and Marcus A. Hanna of Cleveland, who were defeated. The foreign ticket appears to have been defeated by 10,000 votes. The election was decided in favor of Gould by the proxy of Barthwick, Ward & Co., of London for about 260,000 shares. representation than was accorded him. Judge King, when the convention met, in introducing Chairman Griffin, contrived to name before anybody else Gov. McKinley, bringing out tremendous applause. When he referred later to Secretary Blaine an uproar of applause followed from all sides of the hall. President Harrison's name was also tiberally cheered. Chairman Griffin, however, later brought in a warm reference to ex-Gov. Foraker, and Bedlam broke loose again.

After the appointment of various committees Dougherty of Fayette moved to adjourn till tomorrow so that the delegates could attend the ball game. The motion was unanimously carried and the hall was deserted in an instant.

motion was unanimously carried and the hall was deserted in an instant.

The situation tonight is that the Sherman forces are apparently more than ever determined to name three of the four delegates-at-large from Ohjo to the national convention at Minneapolis, and the Foraker cohorts insist that they should have at least two. The withdrawal of Conger from the list of possibilities was one of the developments of the evening.

The Committee on Permanent Organization has decided on Gov. McKinley for permanent chairman. The Platform Committee is said to have practically agreed upon a platform indorsing Harrison's national administration and McKinley's course as Governor, besides eulogiang the accaning bill and condemn

[Great applause.]

Mr. Phelps introduced as temporary chairman Congressman James R. Williams, who made a speech of some length largely devoted to the tariff.

As the Palmer men had applauded the mention of their leader's name in Phelps's speech the Cleveland men cheered to the echo the name of the ex-President as Williams paid a glowing tribute to his tariff policy.

At the conclusion of Williams's speech the announcement was made of State committeeman, Presidential electors and district delegates to the national convention. Committees were then appointed, and quickly following the announcement of the committees the nouncement of the committees the Palmer men gained the first victory of the day by the adoption of a motion to refer all resolutions to the Committee on Resolutions without debate, thus pre venting the reading of any extravagant Cleveland resolutions in the convention. COLORADO REPUBLICANS.

A Resolution Indorsing Harrison's Admin-istration Voted Down.

DENVER (Colo.,) April 27.—[By the Associated Press.] The Republican
State Convention met today. The sentiment of the delegates is solid for the free coinage of silver, and there were threats that if a candidate unfavorable to free coinage is nominated a new party will be organized. The delegation to Minneapolis will favor any one favorable to free coinage.

The convention was called to order shortly after 11 o'clock. Charles E. Johnson of Pueblo was made permanent chairman. The Committee on Platform and Resolutions was appointed, after which the convention proceeded to the selection of delegates-at-large. Sena-tors Edward C. Wolcott, Henry M. Teltors Edward C. Wolcott, Henry M. Teller and Congressman Townsend were put in nomination. The delegates seemed to go wild at the mention of these names. They cheered for several minutes and when quiet was restored the nominations were seconded by every delegate in the convention, and the gentlemen were declared unanimously elected. This means that Harrison in all probability will not receive the vote of the Colegado delegation at Minneapolis. Hon. J. L. Bruss was unanimously selected as the fourth delegate. After the selection of alternates the convention took a recess.

gate. After the selection of alternates the convention took a recess.

When the delegates reconvened, the Committee on Resolutions reported. The platform affirms allegiance and devotion to the doctrines and principles of the Republican party. It says that the demonetization of silver in 1873 was a crime which cheapened the products of mine, farm and workshop and resulted in unequivocal injury to all great industries of our country and benefited only the money country and benefited only the money kings at the expense of the people. It declares a belief that the question of the free coinage of silver is the princi-pal issue now before the American people and steps should be immediately taken for its full restoration as a money value, and demands the enactment of a law providing for the free and unlimited coinage of silver on an equal basis with gold. The platform indorses the diplomatic achievements of James G.
Blaine and his doctrine of reciprocity.
It instructs the delegates to the Minneapolis convention to oppose the nomi-nation by every honorable means of any man for the office of President or Vice-President who is not known to be heartily in favor of the enactment of a law providing for the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted. The mention of Secretary Blaine's name brought forth prolonged cheers. Gen. Meeley of Custer county offered a resolution indorsing the ad-ministration of President Harrison. Instantly there were a dozen men on their feet asking for recognition. The greatest excitement continued for several minutes. A number of speeches were made against the resolution. The resolution was killed by a vote of 628 to 2. The convention then adjourned size die.

How the Verdict is Regarded by Parisians.

The Jury Would Have Sent the Anarch ists to the Guillotine Had it Not Dynamite.

PARIS, April 27.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] When the jury in the case of the Anarchists at 8 o'clock this morning rendered their verdict of guilty with extenuating circumstances against Ravachol and Simon the latter did not show that they expected anything different. After the judge had sentenced them to penal servitude for life they shouted: "Vive la anarchie! Vive la rev-dution sociale!" The verdict occasioned much sur prise, but the general opinion is that the "extenuating circumstances" part of the verdict was due to the fear of the jurors that if the prisoners were condemned to death they would fall vic condemned to death they would fall vic-tims to the Anarchist vengeance. After the proceedings ended and the condemned were removed the courtroom and adjacent corri-dors were the scenes of great animation. The case was discussed in loud tones by everybody. Some held that the jury had shown a woeful lack of courage; others held that the explo-sions showed that the friends of the prisoners were capable of carrying into execution their threats to kill the juryexecution their threats to kill the jury-men if any prisoners were sent to the guillotine. The jury therefore were justified in returning a verdict that would prevent themselves from becoming objects of revenge from the Anarchwould prevent themselves from becoming objects of revenge from the Anarchists.

The Journal des Debats says that it is to be regretted that the jury failed to perform its duty in the same noble minimare that the officials performed theirs. The public generally condemn the verdict. No one doubts that the jury was terrorized. The result is regarded as a triumph for the dynamiters. The fearless conduct of Beaurepaire, the public prosecutor, is warmly commended.

La Justice, Radical organ, says that some foolish minds are already proposing absurd steps. Some are going so far as to argue that the government should declare a state of siege. The proposals made by these persons, La Justice declares, would prove sorry remedies. They would only aggravate the evil. The paper adds, "Let us begin correction of the evil by having a police force that knows its business."

The Gaulois says that it is deplorable that Ravachol should have been allowed a whole day, thanks to the inaptitude of the prosecution, to transform the dock into a tribune from which to preach anarchy.

Liberality with the Public

Begets liberality for business. Liberal advertising begets liberal patronage. Arrangements have been made with THE TIMES for the largest advertising ever done by a dry goods house in this city. Every Sunday we take an entire page. THE TIMES reaches 12,000 subscribers and perhaps 30,000 readers. We want the attention of the public; we want their good will; we want the good will of the traveling men; we want the good will of the employees. Every good word dropped is additional capital for the business. We are smoothing over the rough edges. During the war Grant telegraphed Sheridan: "Push things," and the victory was won. We are pushing things. The trade of this house is climbing up higher and higher. We are not blowing about selling goods cheaper than anybody else. How can we? Moderate profits means increased business. The methods we employ are different. We impress our employees to be just to customers, be polite and attentive whether they are agreeable or disagreeable, fair or unfair, considerate or exacting, without any regard to their class or condition, unless you be the more obliging and serviceable to the humble and the ignorant. It is your highest duty to be agreeable to all. We lay the greatest stress on this duty because it is rarely fully performed. Do not notice any slight, impertinence or injury. Do not notice personal peculiarities. Never make uncivil remarks. Be courteous. What is the result? A doubling up in the sales of departments where this is fully practiced. Wherever there is a lag we urge more attention to customers. It is healing. It is refreshing.

Mr. Hooker of Mississippi paid a high tribute to American diplomacy. It was diplomacy which settled our Chilean difficulty; it was diplomacy which settled the Bering Sea matter. Fortunately for the country it had in the position of Secretary of State a man of such large and diplomatic ability that he settled these questions by diplomacy. Blaine had shown himself a great statesman by the manner in which he had settled these questions. When a man came to be premier of this Government he was not a partisan representing a party, he was a statesman representing the country. senting the country.

CONSUMPTIONI

The following are prominent symptoms in the first stage, and wherever any of them exist a thoroughe examination should always be made, with a view to arrest the disease if shown to exist: There is usually a sense of weariness upon a little exercise, a disposition to remain passive and idle, despondency, often from no apparent cause, a peculiar sensitiveness to the effect of cold, and a breathlessness upon moving quickly or descending a hill or stairs, a slight, hacking cough, with or without expect_ration, excitability upon slight occasions, flying pains through the chest or back, or under the shoulder blades. The symptoms are more noticeable toward or during the night; slight fever in the afternoon; coid feet and hands, or in many cases blue lividity of of the lips and roots of the finger nails. Sometimes splitting of blood or slight streaks in the mucus is the first indication, of tubercular deposit, or it may be archily sensation in the back, followed by more or less heat in the paims of the hands, or an afternoon flush on the cheeks. The siow and gradual inroads of this form of consumption leave the stom ach and appetite undisturbed for a considerable time. Finally, however, heetic fever and night sweats, supervene, preceded by diarrhoa. Then the loss of fesh and strength becomes rapid, the chest contracts, the features sharpen, the eye attains an unusual brilliancy, and the patient begins to realize that he is in the last stage of conflexing the construction of the chest contracts, the features sharpen, the eye attains an unusual brilliancy, and the patient begins to realize that he is in the last stage of conflexing the construction of the chest contracts, the features sharpen the eye attains an unusual brilliancy, and the patient begins to realize that he is in the last stage of conflexing the construction of the chest contracts, the features sharpen contracts to business whatever.

A Rather Racy Divorce Suit—Attempted Jail Break—Some Rich Quartz.

The divorce suit of Dunton vs. Dunton occupied Monday and Tuesday, and developed quite a rich and racy case. Mrs. Dunton began proceedings in the first instance, and her husband. H. C. Dunton, filed a cross complaint asking for a divorce, the difference between them evidently being some property which Dunton owns. He lives near-Piru City, upon a plece of railroad land, while his wife has been stopping in Los Angeles for some time. According to Dunton's story, told to The Times correspondent, he has lived with his present wife since 1875; that hat that time she left a husband and two small children, one of whom was a cripple, in the central part of the State, and came south to where he was living and lived with him as his wife up to 1879, when she procured a divorce and they were married. He says that he was married before and was divorced some twenty years ago, the girl being well-known in Ventura. When she secured her divorce she also secured a judgment for $700. Miss Stella Ford and Prof. C. P. Thompson played a plano duet, Dr. T. Hardy Smith sang a baritone solo and the banjo club composed of Mrs. W. A. Bell, Miss Hattie Elliott, and Messrs. Dale and Johnson played a selection or two. Another attraction was Bellamy's "Looking Backward" by Misses Thomas, Murphy, Morse, Whitson, Minier, Ingram and Mrs. Clymer. A BAD CASE.

A young man in this city made two ineffectual attempts at suicide Sunday night and Monday afternoon. He first took two and a half grains of morphine, but as the young fellow had been awake for four or five nights brooding over his troubles, and was in great bodily pain, the morphine did not have the desired effect. On Monday afternoon a friend became suspicious and called at the young man's room to find an empty bottle which formerly contained half an ounce of laudanum, lying on a note addressed "To Whom it May Concern." The letter stated that he was tired of life because his girl had refused to receive his attentions and that life was tired of life because his girl had re-fused to receive his attentions and that life was unendurable without her. He was roused from his sleep and by proper medi-cine and a hard lot of walking was kept alive. It was learned later that the young man called on his lady love and threatened to kill her, but was kept from it by friends. He has repented and will probably not try it again.

The grounds upon which the protest is based are as follows: The work was not completed within the specified time, the orders of the trustees extending the time were void and of no power; that the appellants were before the board of trustees as a court, asking it to annul the assessment that the assessments were made by the street superintendent when the contract was null and void, and consequently were null and illegal; that the contractors violated their bond and the city attorney should institute proceedings against them for not fulfilling their contract.

should institute proceedings against them for not fulfilling their contract.

The contractors were represented by W. E. Dunn, who stated that they would meet the appellants on any point of law, and with an opportunity presented the contractors would show that they had done the proper thing. The appeal was denied by a vote of three to two, and the contractors "given a chance."

The street superintendent stated that the car track had better be paved by the city, to save the rest of the street from being ruined. He also reported upon the Fifth street and Mt. Resolution of intention to pave E street, between Fourth and Ninth, was passed. The contract for sprinkling was awarded D. L. Harris. There seemed to be some doubt in the minds of the board as to the rights of the Electric Light Company in placing light poles, and the city attorney was instructed to investigate the franchise. The resolution by which the names of habitual drunkards were to be kept upon a list, was rescinded by a unanimous vote.

The ladies of the city have reason to be proud of the success attending their labors in preparing this spread. The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers from San Bernardino, Old-San Bernardino and other places.

I. H. Curtis, of Arrowhead Parlor, welcomed the visitors in a short address. The address to the Native Sons on behalf of the citizens was by that gifted orator, Will A. Harris, and the response was by R. M. Fitzgerald.

The delegates from Ontario and Chino re turned from the Republican County Con tion Tuesday night, feeling that they were not in it to any large extent. Two years ago Ontario, Riverside, Redlands and Colago Ontario, Riverside, Redlands and Colton combined against San Bernardino, but this year Redlands and Colton stand in with San Bernardino on account of the county division issue, and Ontario and Rivside are left in loneliness on the outskirts of the situation. They are therefore useful to San Bernardino mostly "for revenue only."

New Discovery in Iron Making.

[Age of Steel.]
Not only iron, but also other metals, such as gold, silver, copper and alu-minum can be extracted from their ores by the new and infinitely cheaper method. When it is considered that the current generated by a dynamo driven by asmall gas or petroleum en-gine will be capable of extracting day for day more metal than the largest for day more metal than the largest blast furnace is able to produce, some idea may be formed of the radical changes which are likely to be the result of the employment of the new process. The invention, which is more rightly described as an electro-techni-cal discovery, was perfected three months ago. The inventor has succal discovery, was perfected three months ago. The inventor has succeeded in devising a practical process which has secured the ready support of a number of well-known American and German capitalists, who propose forming a gigantic international syndicate. The statement as to the saving of 80 per cent. on the present blast-furnace method is said to be no exaggeration. The names of the inventor and his supporters are to be made known to the porters are to be made known to the world as soon as letters patent have been granted.

CRAPES AND CREPONS.

How the Wrinkled Fabrics are Woven The Beautiful Oriental Crapes.

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]
Crape is a fabric of silk, cotton or vool, with a wrinkled surface. Crepon s the French name for a thick crape, but popularly this season it is any fabric with an uneven surface at all suggestive of crape, whether woven like a crape or in plaits thrown up by dropping certain weft threads on the under side at definite intervals, after the Jacquard manner, and tightening them by twisting, as is shown in the accompanying illusas is shown in the accompanying illustration.

The wrinkle of crape is produced by making the weft, and sometimes the warp also, of twisted threads, alternate threads, or groups twisted in the reverse direction. The threads so arranged are woven loose, that is, with space between them, and when the fabric is completed they unjust each in its own tween them, and when the fabric is completed they untwist, each in its own direction, which gives a surface of uniform irregularity. Twisting both warp and weft makes the most perfect crape. If the weft only is twisted, and the warp straight, the weft threads will push up and down the warp, making a less durable fabric. When the twist is in the weft only there is elasticity across the goods, and when twisted both ways it is elastic both ways.

The result of this weaving is a charming surface of broken lights and shading surface of broken lights and shadws; a surface that reflects less light than if smooth, and absorbs much. Such a surface permits color to be seen to advantage, and crapes are especially beautiful in rich colors suited to them, vivid red. Oriental crapes, the most beautiful in the world, are of silk, or of mixed silk and cotton. When of part cotton they are cheaper, but there is no vulgar attempt to conceal the cotton, but it is kept frankly on the surface and its own good qualities are made to appear. Cotton has less power of reflection than silk, and therefore lends itself to in-crease the absorption of light, which is an object in crape weave. Also the crimped surface enhances the beauty of thread.

The Japanese Yoboschi crape shown, magnified in the second illustration, has the warp of silk and the weft of cotton. Both are twisted. It is an exquisite fabric and so sheer and soft that no one would dream that it is not all silk. would dream that it is not all silk. I have before me a sample of Japanese Kanka crape, white with hair line of color. It has straight warp of silk and twisted weft of cotton. It also is a charming texture, semi-transparent, as if the warp were of spun glass. There is also a French crape twisted only in the weft, in which the weft threads are of both silk and cotton, the two alternoof the straight of the straig of both silk and cotton, the two alterof both silk and cotton, the two alternating regularly, to produce a delight-ful checkered effect. These two last are each 75 cents a yard. Beautiful wools of crape weave in the market are forty-eight inches wide and $1 a yard. Some of the French cotton crapes at 40 cents are very desirable. The favor shown to this legitimate development of weaving, which lays stress on the inherent quality of the cloth seems to be a sign of growing taste.

There have been in weaving too many efforts to make things seem what they are not. This æsthetic vogue is worthy to be noted.

to be noted.

Canton crape shawls, embroidered and figured, are always a staple in the market. They are expensive and the crape may be bought from the piece instead, forty inches wide, at $5 a yard, to make a shawlat less expense. Lightweight French crape is used this season for scarfs to take the place of boas. It takes four yards, and is passed around the neck and brought forward and tied in a big bow. Black is the best choice. What is known as mourning crape is not a crape weave at all, and has no beauty of texture. Its wrinkled surface is made by stiffening gauze and pressing is made by stiffening gauze and pressing it on a matrix, thus doing violence to the quality of the cloth and producing a most disagreeable result. ADA CONE.

The Throat's Independent Brain.

[Philadelphia Press.]

"Did you ever know," said a well-known specialist, as he deftly inserted a looking glass into the roof of the sufferer's mouth, "that the throat has a brain of the own." Not I suppose few brain of its own? No? I suppose few of the laity do know it, but it's a fact. There is a small ganglia which exercises direct control over the muscles of the throat and acts as its brain. Of course, throat and acts as its brain. Of course, it is subservient to the genuine brain, but at the same time does a good deal of independent thinking for itself. It is very timid and suspicious at any strange objects that come near the throat. For this reason it is very difficult for a physician to operate on the throat. Before anything can be done in this direction it is necessary for the operator to gain the confidence of the operator to gain the confidence of the little brain that dominates it. It fre-quently takes weeks before this confi-dence can be secured, and until it is secured it is impossible to operate. When the little brain is finally made to under-stand that no harm is intended it, but that the physician is actuated by friendly motives, it will submit to al-most any treatment, however painful.

"But we to the man who attempts' rough treatment to the throat before gaining the little brain's confidence, gaining the intre oran's connence, and in spite of its protests. His oper-ations will be resented with violent paroxysms, first of the throat, then of the diaphragm, and, if the operator still persists, the patient will be thrown into convulsions. Sill more curious is the fact that this little brain has a memory, and if once frightened in this way, it is almost impossible to ever gain its confidence, no matter how gen-the the operator may be.

'I don't know whether its distrust would extend to other operators than the one who frightened it or not. I think I will try the experiment some time of seeing whether it can remember faces.

Fruit vs. Beer. [Anaheim Gazettee.]

A curious fact not noticed in the census, but carefully observed by the brewers of several Eastern cities, is that when fruit is abundant a falling off takes place in the consumption of beer The refreshing coolness of juicy fruit assauges the thirst, and the costly cool-ness of beer can be dispensed with. The theory of a ratio in the consumption of fruit and beer induces the hope in the teetotal breast that when California attains its maximum production in the orchards, beer will cut a very low figure as a beverage. At present there are no signs of the prevalence of fruits over alsoholic drinks. They may, indeed, be said to go together in harmony, as when the strawberry is added as a qualification to the cocktail. If the consumption of beer may be judged by the number of places open for its sale day and night, the fruit supply will have to be a permanent glut to make any appreciable inroad on the bung in-dustry.

Developments Yesterday-The Ah Lem Murder Trial-General Court Notes.

In the United States District Court yesterday morning the case against Joseph D. Lynch and James J. Ayers, charged with having violated the anti-lottery law on December 7 last, came up for trial before Judge Ross, the Gov-ernment being represented by United States District Attorney Allen, and Messrs. A. B. Hotchkiss and Jay E. Hunster appearing for the defendants. The jurors selected to try the case were: William F. Ball, Edward K. Benchley, Joseph W. Frey, Henry de Garmo, Joseph Hamilton, Charles W. Hicks, John M. Johnstone, Thomas S. Juden, Edward F. Mullen, J. T. O'Hara, Harry Seigel and Herman F. Vollmer.

Seigel and Herman F. Vollmer.

The first witness called for the Government was John W. Summerfield, assistant postmaster at Santa Monica, who testified to the effect that on December 7 last he took several papers out of the pouch and handed them to the postmaster, W. S. Vawwer, who, upon opening them found that three Heralds addressed to "Outlook X, F. R. Elils and John Wolfskill," respectively, contained a list of the official drawing contained a list of the official drawing of the Grand Lottery Juarez, Mexican International Banking Company. On cross-examination the witness stated that for some time prior to December the papers used to come to Santa Monica in a bundle ontside of the pouch. They were then brought down on the train by the mail messenger at Santa Monica, who brought them to the office where they were distributed with the rest of the mails. On October 20, there was a lottery advertisement in the paper, and the Attorney-General was communicated with. He thought that before a case could be made out against defendants, the paper should come in the mail pouch in the regular way, so the matter was dropped. An employé of the Herald on being told of the matter, promised that it should not occur again. cross-examination the witness occur again

THE DUNI ASSAULT CASE.

In Department One yesterday morning G. Duni, an Italian, appeared before Judge Smith with his counsel, John W. Mitchell, Esq., for trial upon the charge of having assaulted J. J. Whitaker with of having assaulted J. J. Whitaker with a pitchfork, a deadly weapon, on November 30 last at Elysian Heights, the prosecution being represented by Deputy District Attorney Diehl.

The jurors selected to try the case were R. Barber, J. C. Barron, J. B. Camp, S. H. Case, B. Chubble, H. Cleveland, J. G. Letelier, E. M. Millsap, A. J. Painter, A. B. Phillips, H. L. Pinney and A. C. Shafer. and A. C. Shafer.

The following witnesses were called Helen Whitaker, Emma Burnett and W. R. Burnett. Their testimony was to the effect that the complainant, Whita-ker, and the defendant had had trouble about some and in Elysian Heights and about some land in Elysian Heights and on the date in question they quarreled over the matter with the result that Duni tried to stab Whitaker with a four-pronged pitchfork which he carried. The defendant denied the charge, and sought by his son and several other witnesses to prove that Whitaker and not he was to blame. The matter was finally submitted to the jury at 4 o'clock p.m., and fifteen minutes later that body returned a verdict of simple assault. The defendant thereupon waived his legal rights and was sentenced to pay a fine of $60, with the alternative of thirty days in the County Jail. The fine was promptly paid and the defendant discharged.

THE CHINESE MURDER TRIAL. In Department Five yesterday the trial of the Ah Len murder was resumed before Judge Shaw and a jury, the following witnesses being examined by the defense: Dr. N. H. Morrison, Ah Lim, Henry Wood, Lou Fou and Ah Ben. Pursuant to stipulation, extracts were read from the deposition of John Goldworthy, taken at the previous trial, and the defense then called its last witness, a negro named Redding, but as he was not present, court adjourned for the day at 8:80 o'clock p.m. The case will be closed today, but in all probability it will not be submitted to the jury until tomorrow.

The Goods Are Pure.

[St. Louis Journal of Agriculture.]

The business of the Royal Baking Powder Company comes to us in the regular way, and is not, therefore, entitled to any special mention on that account. But the fact that other baking powder companies have been making war on this company and using all manner of unfair means to injure its business is itself an appeal to the love of fair play which is a part of the character of every good American citizen

The fact that the Royal Baking Pow-der Company has succeeded far beyond any of its competitors is no doubt reason enough for some of them to say any son enough for some of them to say any-thing against the Royal Baking Powder that they can get newspapers to pub-lish. We do not know whether that sort of thing has injured the Royal's business or not. We don't suppose it has, but of one thing we are sure, when the goods of any company have been on the market as Royal Baking Powder has for a whole generation and been the market as Royal Baking Powder has for a whole generation, and been consumed by almost the entire population to a greater or less extent with perfect satisfaction to all, and without having injured the health of a single person, then it will take more than spite or jealousy to injure its business. The baking powders made by this company have been tested a thousand times by the most eminent chemists and always pronounced pure and wholesome. ways pronounced pure and wholesome. This, added to the experience of the millions who have used them, will stamp as absurd the attacks of other manufacturers who are prompted by jealousy of their great success to publish false statements about the Royal Company's goods.

Some Reasons Why the Canal Should Be Built.

And Why the Government Should Aid in the Work.

Commercial Possibilities Opened Up by an Artificial Water Way of This Sort -The Greatest Problem of Recent Years.

The State Nicaragua Canal Convention of California, which recently met in San Francisco, provided, among other things, for the appointment of an Executive Committee of nine, which committee was empowered to prepare and publish an address to the American people, showing some of the reasons why the Nicaragua Canal should be built, why the Government should aid in its construction and control the work. This committee has prepared an address, which has been mailed to boards of trade, chambers of commerce and other commercial organizations, as well as to leading papers, with the request that it be given the widest publicity, in order to awaken public interest in the great enterprise, which will be of such incalculable benefit to the whole Pacific Coast, as well as to the business interests of the world. Hon. Warner Miller of New York, president of the canal company, is to visit Los Angeles about the middle of May in the interest of the enterprise, and will deliver an address before the Chamber of Com-merce, in which much valuable information will be given. Following is the address prepared by the California com-

THE ADDRESS.

In this age of commercial activity, the United States must push its trade and commerce, or it will lose its foreign markets and suffer financial depression. The advantageous position of this country ought to make it the first commercial nation of the world. Its peculiar location on the Western Continent, its vast agricultural and mineral resources, the variety and quality of its productions, the extent of its territory, its coast line fronting on both oceans and extending along each side of the continent for thousands of miles, the amount of its wealth, its great and increasing population, and its free institutions, all combine, if rightly directed, in placing this republic in the front rank among the commercial nations of the world.

But even with these advantages, if we would succeed commercially, we must overcome every physical obstruction to quick, cheap and safe transportation to all foreign and domestic markets.

And thus the question of the hour and the come every physical obstruction to quick, cheap and safe transportation to all foreign and domestic markets.

And thus the question of the hour and the greatest problem of recent years is one of transportion. In the near future success or failure will depend more on cheap transportation by land or water than on the quality and quantity of the articles produced. Water transportation is the only competitor of railroads, and the shorter the water routes the greater and more effective the competition. Railroads now cross the continent, a distance of more than 3000 miles, while the constructive portion of the Nicarauga Canali siess than twenty-six and one-half miles, the whole length of the canal (including the naviggable portions of Nicarauga Lake and San Juan River) is only 169½ miles.

If the American people would make water transportations between the eastern and western side of the continent a successful competitor to land transportation the Nicarauga Canal must be constructed; and it should be built by American people.

Commercially, nothing within the range of thought will accomplish so much for our country as the building of this great water way. It will shorten the distance by sea between the two sides of our country about 10,000 miles, and from the Pacific Coast to Europe about 7000 miles. It will create greater commercial possibilities between the different sections of our country, and it will largely increase our trade facilities with all foreign countries. It will make a competing route for transportation by water which will neutralize the combinations of land transportation companies, and yet it will tend to increase the very business of the commerce of the Pacific Coean, now drifting into foreign channels. It will bind together by the ties of a common interest all of the make secure to this Republic much of the commerce of the Pacific Ocean, now drifting into foreign channels. It will bind together by the ties of a common interest all of the States of the Union. It will open the commerce of the Pacific with the Valley of the Mississippi. The Gulf States and the far West will feel the vitalizing forces of new and better markets for the products of the soil, because cheaper trrnsportation by sea will increase prices and thus greatly benefit the interior and producing States of the Union, while the North and the East will grow strong under an increased demand for American shipping, and the manufacturing industries of those sections will be greatly benefited by an improved home and foreign market.

It will give renewed and stronger expression to an American policy of maintaining peace among nations by building up industries and creating trade and commerce. But more than this, the defense of the Pacific States in time of war should demand be theorebythil and naticity consideration. commerce of the Pacific Ocean, now drifting peace among nations by building up industries and creating trade and commerce.

But more than this, the defense of the Pacific States in time of warshould demand the thoughtful and patriotic consideration of the whole country. The Pacific Coast industries are now so large and varied, the population of that part of the Union so sparse, the distance around Cape Horn by sea so great, the long time required to reach there by water, the increasing needs of that part of the American Union, all point to and make necessary, as a matter of national safety, the building of the Nicaragua Canal.

No more illustrious example of the fostering care which the most enlightened nations of our time give to the subject of trade and commerce can be found than in the history of the commercial supremacy of England. Her keen business sense, her insular and yet midway position between America and the Eastern Continent, her knowledge that the nation which controls the carrying trade of the world largely controls its commerce, her liberal policy in building up the one and thus sustaining the other, and, lastly (and most conspicuous of all) the construction of the Suez Canal, has made that marvelous country the commercial mistress of the world.

Let America profit by her example. Let our Congress aid in this great work; not as a menace to foreign nations, but as a protection to our own country, and a blessing to all other countries. So that this canal, which is to be built across the American capital and controlled by the American capital and controlled by the American people. And when completed, it will unite, by the ties of commercial interest, all the American republics, giving greater stability and renewed prosperity to each, inspiring confidence and insuring perpetual peace among all of them.

A DEPRAVED WRETCH. Pinard Admits Placing His Wife in a House of Prostitution.

Justice Austin did a good piece of work yesterday when he held the notorious "mac," Charles Pinard, for trial in the Supreme Court, with bail fixed at $5,000 As was stated in yesterday morning's Times, the brute was arrested on com-plaint of his 18-year-old wife, who claimed that he induced her to enter a house of prostitution for the purpose of supporting him in idleness. Yesterday the Kite-shaped Track and its rolling stock were turned over to the Native Sons. The city donated Mayor Hazard to chaperon the crowd, and California's children enjoyed such a gala day as they had never experienced before. "I wish I were my son's son," wishfully remarked a '49er as he stood on the platform at the Santa Fé depot watching the preparations for departure, "then I could go, too. Just because these youngsters happen to be born here they must be toted round the country on free excursions."

At 1:15 the train pulled out for San Bernardino, the Redlands Native Sons having joined the excursionists. Several boxes of choice Redlands oranges had been brought on board and were distributed among the visitors, each orange being wrapped in tissue paper, on which was printed, "Redlands navels, with fraternal regards of Redlands Parlor, No. 168, N.S.G.W."
These oranges occupied the attention of the visitors during the twenty minutes run to San Bernardino. The train halted at the E street station, where they were met by Arrowhead Parlor. A large number of carriages were in waiting to which the ladies were es-

A large number of carriages were escorted, and the gentlemen formed in procession, and, led by the past presidents of Arrowhead Parlor, bearing their magnificent banner, marched four abreast through the principal streets to the city pavilion, to the music of the band.

To say that San Barnardino's greeting to the Native Sons of the Golden West was royal is expressing it mildly. All the business houses were decorated with both bunting and flowers, In one plate-glass window was California's bear done in roses. The interior of the great pavilion had been literally transformed into a bower, its walls and ceiling hung with foliage and garlanded with flowers. Against a panel of green above the platform the words "Welcome, N.S.G.W." were worked in roses, and at one side was an axrowhead, also in roses. A floral bank faced the platform, the letters "F. L. C.," signifying friendship, love, charity, being worked out in crimson on an immense tablet of pale tinted roses. Six long tables, extending the entire length of the building, were laden with meats, salads, fruits and other delicacles, and beautifully decorated with flowers.

A Reception Committee was on hand to receive the visitors at the door of the pavilion and make them welcome. W. A. Harris, a leading attorney of San Bernardino, and John Brown, Jr., secretary of the Pioneers, assisting the Native Sons in these duties. Without any preliminaries the visitors were seated at the tables and the clatter of knives and forks rose above the hum of hundreds of voices. Occasional exper-ant cheers rent the air, expressing the intense satisfaction of the visitors at their royal reception. The galleries above were crowded with San Bernarintense satisfaction of the visitors at their royal reception. The galleries above were crowded with San-Bernardino citizens, An orchestra was stationed on the platferm and discoursed music during the feast.

Elegant souvenirs were laid at each plate beside a dainty boutonniere tied with ribbons. The souvenirs were of heavy embossed paper cut in the shape of an arrowhead with a raised figure of a bear on the cover. On the back was a cut of the Kite-shaped Track and in fanciful letters "Fifteenth session. Our ride through Southern California on the Kite-shaped Track and in fanciful letters "Fifteenth session. When the hungry appetites had been appeased, I. H. Curtis, president of the Arrowhead Parlor, made a brief speech of welcome, to which R. M. Fitzgerald, president of the Grand Parlor, responded. He said that he was conceptinged that any one must yo away. convinced that any one must go away from home in order to be appreciated. "San Bernardino has opened her gates and hearts to you in welcome," he said. Then a loud call arose for "White, White," and Stephen M. White mounted on a chair and made one of his eloquent

The excursionists then had just thirty minutes to make the train, and after walking about the handsome park which surrounds the pavilion for a few minutes took carriages and returned to Riverside was reached at 4:10, and here again the citizens were in waiting with their carriages to welcome these California boys and girls and give them a drive through their orange groves. When the carriages gave out, the street cars were utilized so that every one had a chance for a ride down that magnifia chance for a ride down that magnifi-cent boulevard, Magnolia avenue. The street cars on this particular line are drawn by mules, and Mayor Hazard in-sisted on handling the ribbons for the car on which he was a passenger. Now, although the Mayor prides him-self on his horsemanship, it must be confessed that he is not a mule driver, and he came hear wrecking were self. and he came near wrecking, not only his own car, but the one in front. The mules, realizing that an inexperienced hand was at the helm, assumed a go-as-you-please gait, and several hair-breath escapes were the result. Several 'short stops' were made and the Native Sons, in all the glory of their dress suits and badges glory of their dress suits and badges were compelled to get off and push the car against the mules' heels in order to get them along. The beasts were also freely pelted with oranges, but all of no avail, and the boys finally concluded that it was not the mules, but the driver, who was at fault, and, fearing they would miss the train at Arlington, some six miles below Riverside, with which the street car line connected, insisted upon the genial mayor resigning the reins to the driver, who had been grade to Mentone.

Redlands was reached at 12:15, and its citizens had turned out en masse to greet the visitors, and brought their carriages along with them. All sorts of conveyances, from a dog cart to a four-in-hand, were called into requisition, and the delegates were taken for a drive about the country. When Smiley Heights was reached, and the magnificent view looking eighty miles down the smiling valley with its vine-yards and orange groves, its fertile meadows and uplands dotted with the spires and roofs of its towns, the enthusiasm of the delegates were taken for a drive about the country. Said a prominent Native Son: "The boys never had so good a time in all their lives before. They came down here expecting to find the country filled with Eastern people who knew but little and cared less about the Native Sons of the cared less about the Native Sons of the Golden West, but every one of them is ready to declare that never in any city have they been accorded such royal entertainment and cordial welcome as in the City of the Angels." CINDERS.

Hyrugeons took possession of the upper end of the train and all visitors were given a reception that will last them for the remainder of their lives. Shoes, clothing, jewelry and valuables of any and all descriptions were appropriated in a manner that would have done creffit to train-robbers. The spoils were then auctioned off by Ed J. A number of requisitions were proved, one for $45 for painting hose cart and one for $60 for painting engine No. 1, were laid aside for the time, the commissioners agreeing that the prices named are outrageously high.

A communication was received from Supt. Barrett of the Consolidated Electric Company, complaining that men putting up fire alarm wires were using the electric road's poles without the company's knowledge or consent. It was stated that no other wires are allowed on the company's poles, as it is mpany's dangerous to all parties concerned. It was further stated that climbers were used in ascending the poles and holes bored which let water in and rotted the bored which let water in and rotted the poles. These things are not allowed in the electric line, and the board is asked to remove the wires and put the poles in the condition they were before.

The Chief stated there was nothing in the city ordinances regarding the use of the poles in this way, and the matter was referred to a committee of one and the Chief to confer with Sure Barret.

The proposed amendment to the city ordinances making it unlawful for any one to put ashes in any wooden vessel on the floor of any building or in any metallic vessel within two inches of any woodwork or structure, was recommended for adoption by the Council. The Chief reported progress in extending the fire alarm system, the men now being about ready to put in the boxes.

pecuniary embarrassment, under which he was laboring, caused him to forget to leave his address.

Yesterday the son of Prof. M. H. Alter, the optician, called at the police station to report another oversight on the part of the professor. He said his father had loaned the professor fifty-two lantern slides and one chromotrope for use in his exhibitions, which had not been returned. The chromotrope was been returned. The chromotrope was valued at $8 and the slides at 50 cents each, and the young man wanted to know whether or not the police could not either get back the property or cor-ral the professor. As the young man did not know where the professor now is nothing could be done for him.

It is also said that when the professor's effects were attached some days ago, a couple of citizens went on his bond for $700, so that they could be

EXPLORING THE LAKES OF THE TAKONS.

Besieged by Mosquitoes and Floating Timbers Twenty to Thirty Miles a Day Under Sail and With Oars-Legends of the Takons.

[No. 6. International Press Association.]
On Newbärry Rivers, Burrier N. W.
T., July 1, 1891.—The last letter left us just reaching the shores of Ahk-klain, or the Big Lake. There are several Ahkklains (or big lakes) in this general locality, however, which would seem to suggest that the title is only descriptive after all, and has not the full signification of a proper name. Had we [No. 6. International Press Association.] nification of a proper name. Had we taken the northern path at "The Trail Splitter"—which we came near doing by mistake—its course would have led us to anount Ahk-klain, which is simply the largest of a series of lakes on that trail according to the Indian version. Again, Lake Bennett (which I named after James Gordon Hennett in 1883) is Ahk-klain to the Chilkats, a land of Tlinkits that trade in the interior by a trail that takes them over this lake and several others, of which Bennett is among the largest. So several more or less clearly defined Ahk-klains have been known for varying periods as existing herenbouts and some of them have even crept into maps but nearly always as Lake Ahk-lain (with several methods of spelling it), a tautological error about equivalent to Lake Lac Quiparle or Rio Grande river. One of the attractive features of its shores was the large number of wild roses seen in bloom and that crowded all the open spaces where timber fires had killed the trees and allowed the sun to get freely at the soil. The robins and the roses were a grateful contrast to the snow banks and ptarmigan we had so recently left behind. But there is no rose without a thorn, and there were certainly a thousand thorns in this case for each rose if the mosquitoes can be figuratively spoken of as such. Two of the party tried to take a short hunting and fishing tour up the lake and were driven back by these numerous pests. The 17th of June was spent in rigging out the folding canvas boats for lake navigation. Masts and stays were made from poles and boards and fish-slicker blankets were extemporized into sails. Very good oars were made by Russell from rough slabs, he being a carpenter and boat builder. We had not struck the upper end of the long narrow lake as some may imagine from my previous descriptions, but on the western shore some distance from that point. To determine how far it was to this end and make its survey complete, the doctor and I started for it in a boat the after-moon of the 17th, but after rowing vigmake its survey complete, the doctor and I started for it in a boat the aftermon of the 17th, but after rowing vig-orously half the afternoon against a head wind, we were forced to turn back, the lake still stretching out southward around a slight bend as far evident that the lake, like the river we had met on the Pacific slope, was far above its normal level. All of the shore above its normal level. All of the shore line timber was half under water, showing that the lake beach was well submerged, and it was only at the very open places we could launeh or land our boats favorably. During the day we saw a heavy signal smoke far down the lake showthat all the Indians had not left the country despite the large number of outward bound fur traders that we had met on only one trail. In fact I was outward bound fur traders that we had met on only one trail. In fact I was surprised to find such a number of Tlinkits of any clan (these are the Takou clan) making their houses on the British American inland plateau. I knew personally that several of the clans had trails leading thereto, but supposed they only used them to make fur-trading excursions to the inland tribes. The Takons have a legend, so my own Indians told me, that all the Tlinkits were once Takons and lived as friends in one big village on the banks of the Takon river until a general quar-

Thinkits were once Takons and lived as friends in one big village on the banks of the Takon river until a general quarrel arose (it may be a waste of printers ink to state there was a woman in the case) and many were killed and maimed therein. As a consequence a number of discontented parties radiated out from this Tlinkit Babel and founded the various clans or sub-tribes of Chilkats, Sitkas. Kootznahoos. Anks, Stickeens, and others of the Tlinkit tongue.

From Ahk-kain a trail, wagon road or even railway could be run practically in any direction that bore the cardinal point of eastward in its course.

The forenoon of June 18 we got away under "slicker" sail with a fair four-mile breeze. Some six or seven miles beyond camp there is a tumble down Indian "shack" on the cast bank that may be inhabited occasionally for I had found out by this time that however dilapidated a native building looked, especially about the roof, it was no positive sign but that that part may be repaired annually and at certain seasons it is occupied. A heavy roaring sound from this bank showed us that quite a large river came in here. It was about fifty yards wine, shallow but rapid, while its delta shallow but rapid, while its delta was clogged with drift timber. Everywhere along the shores of the lake this drift timber was to be seen. Whenever we tried to land this driftwood on the lake shore, at this high stage of water, barred our way more or less effectually, and we were lucky indeed where the driftwood was solid, and we could carry the boats ashere fr m its outer margin. In nine cases out of ten, however, the outer friage of logs were loose in the water, would roll over when stepped upon, and this combined with their slippery, slimy sides made landing an athletic undertaking not war agreeable in our stiffened condition, arter several nours in, the boat. About noon our wind died out and the rest of the day we spent at the oars. The inddle of the afternoon a wind set in stiffly from the north and delayed us a great deal. This alternation of forenoon and afternoon winds in opposite directions we found to be quite common but with considerable diversity as to the time of day when the change took place. About noon we saw a large river coming in from the cast. By 4 o'clock we reached Cliff Point on the eastward, the first abrupt promontory on the lake that we had met. It was grante, some 75 to 100 feet perpendicular and a most picturesque and conspleuous break to the gentle gradients so characteristic of the shores of Ahk-klain. There were twenty-three great big miles to our credit that evening, a distance that appears insignificant now. looking back from the land of railroads and ocean greyhounds, but that made camp seem like a foreign country from the place we had left in the morning by comparison with our former gait. The next day, June 19, was almost a repetition of the one described. About noon that day we came abreast of the Caribou range, so called by the Indians. This is a most conspicuous insolated cluster of peaks on the west shore, around which the lake slightly bends as if divided at this point into two great arms. The first day's boating had not given us a single 'rise' with three trolling lines set out, but this day, when we saw some fish jumping, the trolls were again cast and two salmon trout. With a twenty-seven mile record that say we felt like camping early, but the

With a twenty-seven mile record that With a twenty-seven mile record that say we felt like camping early, but the driftwood vetoed our efforts and warned us convincingly that if we wanted to get all work done before dark we must hereafter seek an early camp to compensate for time lost in this way. We got away early the 20th, as a spanking breeze our way induced us to press matters while it lasted.

About 9 we need the mouth of the us to press matters while it lasted.

About 9 we passed the mouth of the Keen-klain (Heen-river in Tlink-it), or Big River of the Indians. It comes in from the east and is 100 to 152 yards wide. Its valley is conspicuous, and can be traced back inland for forty to fifty miles; large snow-clad hills flanking it on the southwest. It is evidently the largest river draining into Ahk-Klain. Here a couple of Takou Indians, in a light birch-bark cance, padbled over to us from the west side, having previously signalled us by a gunshot. They had some uninviting dried moose-meat with them, but we bought the best looking piece among the lot, they, as usual, getting the best end of the bargain. That evening's meal had the best the market afforded, there being gulls' eggs, moose-meat and salmon the bargain. That evening's meal had the best the market afforded, there being gulls' eggs, moose-meat and salmon trout, with pork and beans for dessert. The record for the day was twenty-five miles, the greater part being done by good, honest rowing. The next day, in the early afternoon, the lake began to narrow rapidly, and the outlet could be seen among a lot of white broken banks. At 4:20 we entered the draining river and once more took a good gait without laboring for it. That day we made twenty miles on the lake, or ninety-five in all. It is therefore safe to assert that Ahk-klain is over one hundred miles in length and will therefore take its place among the great lakes of the British American Northwest; a land famous for its large lakes. The land of the Takons may be said to end with it, the farthest inland of any of the Tlinkits. Yet I came in contact several times with the fact that they knew something of a Tlinkit band, the Stickeens, showing that a probable inland communication existed between them. The Stickeen country is around Wrnge II, Alaska, this town depending on the a Cassiar mines, reached from Wrangell by the Stickeen river. This stream is navigable for 140 miles, then there are some seventy-five miles by pack-train to Dease Lake, and twenty-five miles over it to Cassiar. All through this land the Stickeens have been empack-train to Dease Lake, and twentyfive miles over it to Cassiar. All through this land the Stickeens have been employed and may have extended their trading excursions to the Takou land of lakes. Kat-o-shan, the present Stickeen chief, gave me int teresting information as to the use to which the Tlinket totem-poles are puand regarding which there are a number of conjectures. He said that excavations in them are often used as burial places for the ashes of cremated Indians, while others are geneological and historical.

and historical.

These Indians have a legend that the great Stickeen glacier once reached across the river which flowed underneath. Through the icy tunnel they once sent an old man in his cance. To neath. Through the icy tannel they once sent an old man in his cance. To corroborate the first, there can still be seen the remnant of a glacier opposite the main mass of ice, but nothing to corroborate the second except the amply inherent meanness of them to do such a trick, especially if the old man was a decreptiand valueless slave. I was told that about the latter '70's Shot-rich, chief of the Chilkats, of whom I have already spoken, killed sixty slaves before Shakes, chief of the Stickeens, who, not to be outdone in abolishing slavery, slew sixty-five before Shot-rich. Then the two clans fought and the Stickeens were whipped, my informant adding that Shakes committed suicide as a result.

healthy woman instead of a tired and ailing one is stead of a tired and ailing one is sounds like a miracle, doesn't it! But it isn't. It's only the ordinary, every-day work of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—just the work that it was made for. It's a woman's medicine, carefully compounded for her by an experienced physician, and adapted to her delicate organization. It makes weak women strong, suffering women well. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and bracing nervine, and a certain cure for all the functional derangements, painful disorders or chronic weaknesses peculiar to the sex. Fer ulceration, displacements, bearing -down sensations, "female complaints" of every kind, it's a never-failing remedy.

And, among all the medicines that claim to help women, "Favorite Prescription" is the only one that's guaranteed to do what is promised for it. It it doesn't benefit or cure, in any case, you have your money back.

713 South Main Street, - - - Los Angeles, California.

The above are two fac similes of many REWARDS OF MERIT or DIPLOMAS of PROFES-SIONAL SKILL which have from time to time been awarded to the CELEBRATED CHINESE PHYSICIAN, DR. WONG, for his superior medical abilities and curative powers.

It has long been customary among the Chinese people when one becomes sick and when repeated attempts to cure him have failed, and he is perhaps given up to die, if, after having been taken to an eminent physician, he be cured of his disease—the cured, too in addition to the regular fee for professional services rendered, makes the physician a present as a token of gratitude for his restoration to health and the prolongation of his life. This present consists usually of a broad plank, presenting much the appearance of a sign-board, filled with characters entirely meaningless to the average English scholar, but full of meaning to the successful physician and his friends. It is a motto which highly compliments the physician for his great skill in effecting a cure of the disease which once afflicted the donor.

It is not an uncommon thing to see a great number of these COMPLIMENTARY DIPLOMAS dorning the office walls of Chinese physicians in their native country, and indeed a number of the ost successful ones in this country are the happy possessors of a few of these high tokens of very meritant properties of the properties of the

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—[Special to THE TIMES.] The fruit market remains in much the same condition as for some days. Oranges continue to arrive in large lots and the feeling for both navels and seedlings is decidedly weak. Prunes are more liberal in supply, but the quality pre-vents ready sale. Strawberries meet good demand and quotations are more reasonable.

The vegetable market for green stuff today showed a fair volume of business. Onions were easier and potatoes are without any matertal change. Green peas were lower, owing to liberal receipts, and asparagus was a shade higher.

Butter was a shade irmer, as the packing process has relieved supplies to some extent. Receipts are still very heavy.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 11, 1892
After suffering for years with stomach trouble I was at last induced to try Dr. Wong Him, of No. 68 Upper Main street, Los Angeles. He examined me and pronounced my trouble tumor in the stomach. After two months' treatment, during which time I felt greatly relieved and benefited, he pronounced me entirely cured, and from that time to the present, which is four months, I have not felt the least return of my old trouble. I am able to eat many things which formerly would distress me very much. Therefore I feel that I can do nothing else than to recommend the doctor to all who can be induced to try him. I hereby extend him my most heartfelt thanks for his services to me.

THERE IS good reason why Messrs. John Beckwith & Son, the Druggists, should be proud of the record of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Few. if any, medicines enjoy a better reputation or are more esteemed by those who have used it for many years and know its real vaue. Here is what E. B. Legg, druggist of Vail, lows, says of it: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for ten years and have always warranted it and never had a bottle returned. During the past ninety days I have sold twelve dozen and it has given perfect satisfaction in every instance."

Sickness Among Children, Especially among infants, is prevalent more or less at all times, but is largely avoided by giving proper nourishment and wholesome food. The most successful and reliable of all is the Gail Borden "Eagle" Braad Condensed Milk. Your grocer and druggist keep it.

THE hot sea-water baths are now open for patronage at the Hotel Arcadia, Santa Monica. As these baths are located in the hotel building and the halls heated by steam, it removes all danger of taking cold. Elevator runs to the bath rooms.
